"The only thing that could stop continuous meetings now would be a settlement," Margolis said. He added that scores of differences need to be resolved, but in ... the companies and unions are near agreement on a few ... issues.

To Meet Separately

John W Gibson, assistant secretary of labor, told reporters he had arranged to meet separately with top men in the Bell system and the unions. These include Joseph A Beirne, president of the National Federation of Telephone Workers (Ind), and C F Craig, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Conciliation Director Edgar L Warren and John W Gibson, assistant secretary of labor, still hoped to duplicate their feat of last year when they brought off a settlement just 25 minutes before a nationwide walkout of telephone workers are due to begin.

The contract negotiations between the independent National Federation of Telephone Workers and the Bell system involve directly 287,000 members of 39 unions. But the NFTW expects possibly 340,000 workers to go out if the strike develops as scheduled at 6 a. m., in each time zone Monday.

Step Up Talks

Government conciliators here stepped up their talks involving two of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's biggest and most important units. These are the long lines division, which handles the long distance operations of the Bell system, and the Southwestern Bell Telephone company.

While the conciliators worked with union and company representatives in private conferences, Gibson and Warren called a separate huddle with A. T. and T. Vice President C F Craig.

G S Dring, assistant vice president of the A. T. and T. "no progress was made toward settlement" in yesterday's discussion although several offers and counteroffers were made by both parties."

REYNOLDS' WORLD FLIGHT DELAYED

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 5—The round-the-world flight of Milton Reynolds, Chicago pen manufacturer and his two-man crew has been delayed until mid-afternoon by rain and murky weather conditions a spokesman for Reynolds said today.

Frederick Lamb, trip director, said the converted A-26 Douglas bomber in which Reynolds hopes to set a new globe-girdling mark of 80 hours would leave Roosevelt field on Long Island about 1 or 2 p. m. for Newark airport, the take-off point.

There the plane will be fueled and readied for its record-breaking attempt, Lamb added.

He said meteorologists' reports indicated the fliers would encounter clearing weather when approximately 450 miles out over the Atlantic.

Poor weather conditions had forced several postponements in the scheduled takeoff and a delay also occurred when the fliers found it necessary to install and repair a new gas tank flown in from California.

Reynolds' crew members are William Odom, 27, of Roslyn, N Y the pilot, and T. C Sallee, of Roosevelt field, the flight engineer. The pen manufacturer, himself an experienced pilot, will act as navigator.

FIRE RACES CAR; WINS

By The Associated Press

DECATUR, Ill., April 5—A streak of fire raced G. R. Wolfe's car down the street and caught it after a half block chase. Gasoline leaking from the car's tank was ignited. The fire, however, caused damage of only $15 to one of the cars area.

5 Marines Die In China Battle

By The Associated Press

PEIPING, APRIL 5—Five U S. Marines were killed and 16 wounded by armed Chinese in a four-hour battle at a Marine ammunition dump near Tangku today. Chinese military officers said the attackers, whom they identified as Communists, suffered 100 casualties.

The Chinese officers said documents removed from the bodies of slain attackers showed positively they were Communists.

These officers announced that 600 government troops from Chiang Kai-shek's Second army had been dispatched from Tientsin to aid Marines in tracking down the attackers, whose numbers were not known.

Even as the attackers faded into the darkness from which they had struck at a Marine ammunition dump, a heavily-armed Marine convoy was made ready at Tientsin, 25 miles to the west, to set out in pursuit.

Stung by the biggest casualty toll in a long series of clashes with North China irregulars Col Julian N Frisbie, commander of the Fifth Marines at Peiping was flying to Tientsin to take personal command.

A brief Marine announcement confirmed that the fighting at Hsimho, five miles west of Tangku, raged for four hours and 15 minutes beginning at 1 15 a m.

The reports of the fighting were fragmentary saying that one Marine tank was disabled by a land mine, and that several explosions of stored ammunition rocked the dump.

Fighter Planes Called

Marine fighter planes were called out but the Chinese had vanished before the airmen could get into action.

This same dump was raided last Oct 3 by an estimated 200 Chinese who wounded a Marine slightly but left several of their own dead behind. They succeeded in carrying off some ammunition.

That may have been their motive this time but they found the dump manned by about a company of Marines from the First battalion of the First Marine division.

The wounded were taken by plane to the Marine hospital at Tientsin. All names were withheld pending notification of kin.

It was the biggest toll of Marines exacted by armed clashes since the Americans moved back into North China after Japan's surrender.

4 KILLED IN WIND STORM

Members of Oklahoma Family Reported Dead; Rush Aid to Community.

By The Associated Press

WISTER, Okla., April 5—The St. Louis and San Francisco railroads' station agent here reported that four persons were killed when a wind storm struck the Glendale community in Leflore county in eastern Oklahoma early today.

The Red Cross reported that the four dead were from the Vaughn family and listed them as Andrew, George, Jewell and Nancy. Their ages were not known.

The wind storm was reported to have struck the area about 2 a. m., destroying several houses and uprooting trees.

The highway patrol and the Red Cross immediately rushed aid to the Glendale community.

It is a school district with several farm homes in the vicinity.

The highway patrol said that it had received reports that only three were dead and one critically injured.

The storm was part of a general storm that swept all of Oklahoma but no other lives were reported lost.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN FACES WORST FLOOD

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 5—Southern Michigan, sodden from a two to three-inch down-pour, faced its worst flood threat in history today as scores of families fled rising streams and rivers in many cities.

There was no reported loss of life but property damage mounted by thousands of dollars hourly.

H M Wills, United States meteorologist, warned the state to prepare for "the worst flood in history" and said crests may not be expected for two days.

He called on the American Red Cross to aid stricken areas.

A U S Coast Guard auxiliary set up a rescue and evacuation center in hard-hit Mt Clemens, 20 miles, northeast of Detroit where 50 families were ordered to abandon their homes to the swirling flood waters of the Clinton river, rising eight inches an hour.

The Red Cedar river in East Lansing threatened the mainpower station at Michigan State college. A number of homes in the area were abandoned.

The little village of Frankenmuth in eastern Michigan was partially inundated by the Cass river.

Niles and Grand Rapids, in western Michigan, and Flint and Saginaw in the eastern part of the state, braced themselves against rising waters.

Undersheriff Fred Sodt said there is "no chance" of saving a concrete Saline river dam near Ann Arbor. Preparations were made to evacuate an undetermined number of families. Its pentup waters also menaced US-112, the main Chicago-Detroit highway.

Runaway Balloon Leads Fliers Merry Chase

By The Associated Press

ROCK HALL, Md., April 5—A runaway barrage balloon which led army and navy fliers a frantic chase was only a deflated gas-bag today, waiting for its owners to claim it.

A refugee from Washington, the balloon collapsed and fell in Chesapeake bay off this eastern shore community last night, after having raised merry ned with air traffic along the Atlantic coast most of yesterday.

The 35-foot, helium-filled runaway worked loose from its nylon moorings about 11 yesterday morning, apparently restless in spring zephyrs over the capital, where it had served conscientiously for two weeks as an advertisement for the war assets administration.

POWER WORKERS ACT TO RETURN TO AFL

Will Give Up CIO Charter in Mixup Here.

A committee representing employes of the Scioto Plant, Ohio Public Service Co, in a meeting last night with Frank Converse of Cleveland, vice president of the Operating Engineers (AFL), voted to give up their CIO charter and start negotiations next week with the Operating Engineers union.

T G Ellinwood, president of Local 353, Utility Workers Union of America (CIO), said today the 50 employes of the plant all members of Local 353, would give up their membership and send a committee of three men to Cleveland next week to begin negotiations with AFL officials.

The negotiations probably will start about the middle of next week, Mr Ellinwood said.

By joining the Operating Engineers union employes of the plant can be recognized as the bargaining agency, Mr Ellinwood pointed out. In a National Labor Relations board election last fall the workers of the plant voted to join the Operating Engineers union, but following the election no union representative appeared to sign up the men, Mr. Ellinwood explained, and the workers then voted to set up Local 353.

However, the Operating Engineers still hold the bargaining rights as a result of last fall's election even though it has no membership there.

Last month the workers filed a 30 day strike notice with the NLRB in an effort to solve the issue. They were quick to point out the strike vote was not taken against the company and emphasized relations between the company and the union always have been harmonious.

BLIND PAIR HONEYMOON WITH "SEEING-EYE" DOG

Couple Arrive in Cincinnati After Indianapolis Elopement.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 5—Mr and Mrs Charles Owens, blind couple whose enlopement to Indianapolis this week climaxed a romance through braille correspondence, were honeymooning here today.

Owens, 41, and his 29-year-old bride, the former Miss Florence Frutchey of Columbus, O., arrived here from Indianapolis by train late last night.

The couple was accompanied by Owens seeing-eye dog, Captain as they stepped from the coach.

"I made my decision to marry Miss Frutchey, if she would have me, some time ago," the bridegroom said.

The newlyweds will spend "a few days" at the home of Owens' brother, Clyde. Asked if they would visit the bride's home in Columbus, Owens replied that had not been decided.

The couple disappeared last Monday and Mrs Edna Frutchey, the bride's mother, asked police of Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis to look for her daughter.

Before boarding the train in the Indiana capital, the bridegroom announced they were married Thursday night by Rev. Louis Bolding at the home of Owens' sister, Mrs William Lively.

Hughes To Make New Test of Crash Plane

By The Associated Press

CULVER CITY, Calif., April 5—Millionaire Howard Hughes was scheduled to make another try today at test flying his sharp-nosed XF-11 photo reconnaissance plane.

His first attempt with a duplicate of the plane last July almost cost him his life and he spent weeks in a hospital after crashing in a Beverly Hills residential area.

Lewis Wants All but Two Mines Closed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 5—John L. Lewis today asked the government to close all but two bituminous coal mines in the United States.

In a letter to coal mines Administrator N H Collisson, Lewis asked that the mines stay closed until re-examination has been made by a federal mine inspector and the inspector has certified the mines conform with the federal mine safety code.

Thursday the coal mines administration ordered that 518 coal mines remain closed as unsafe.

This left uncertain the number of miners who will return to work Monday at the close of a six day mourning period ordered by Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers (AFL).

Lewis testified before a congressional committee the same day that he had recommended a return to work Monday in all mines that are regarded as safe.

Colder, Windy, Clear Is This Area's Forecast for Easter

Milady's new Easter frock will be hidden by that old standby, the winter coat, and tomorrow's paraders can look for no cooperation from the weather, if forecasts of those in the know come true.

"Colder late tonight, Sunday clear, windy and colder" is the prediction for this area. In some sections of the country umbrellas will, of necessity, be a part of paraders' accessories.

A white Easter was a certainty in Montana and the Dakotas, an Associated Press dispatch reported today. Seven inches of snow fell yesterday at Miles City, Mont., and five inches at Williston, N. D., the dispatch stated. Generally, the Easter forecast called for cloudy skies and below normal temperature.

Rain was predicted for the southern New England states, and along the coast of Washington and Oregon. Sunny weather was expected, however, in Florida, the gulf states, lower Mississippi valley, lower plains states and through most of the Pacific states and western plateau region.

Rain which started last night in eastern Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and lower Michigan moved eastward today but was expected to be over by Sunday morning. In Chicago, a three-inch rainfall was recorded in a 12-hour period Friday night and Saturday morning.

"And when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome had bought sweet spices that they might come and anoint Him. And very early in the morning the first day of the week they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun. And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre? And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: He is risen; He is not here: behold the place where they laid Him. But go your way, tell His disciples and Peter that He goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him, as He said unto you." Mark, 16:1-7.

By ELAINE BALLINGER

As Easter 1947 approaches a world where hope, for many has been enshrouded in a tomb of gray despair there comes a worldwide call to those who follow Him who conquered fear, despair and death, to show compassion to those less fortunate, to bear His love to "even the least of these." Thus are believers in Him to prove, through deed of hand, He truly lives and His commission to "serve all" remains a vital force at work today.

And, at this time of year, the elements of nature even speak in testimony to a great, pulsating heart at work. Now is the time new hope most naturally can germinate and grow. Once more, as the world, refreshed in spring, emerges from a frozen soil, so hearts grow warmer and more readily grasp significance of the season. With joy they reach out for the opportunity to celebrate the resurrection, without which the life abundant which must "be shared if to be kept," as well as hope of life eternal, would leave life and life's earthly end a sealed and hopeless tomb.

So, with the rest of the rejoicing Christian world tomorrow, "those of the faith" in services here, will keep, surrounded with impressive symbols, or in more humble walls, the festival of the resurrection.

Marion's Observance

Marion's churches will be alight with brightly glowing candles, adorned with fragrant flowers of many hues, and charged with an atmosphere of triumphant gladness. Christ's rising from the tomb will be celebrated in many ways, by medium of reechoing music, in story, song, sermon and drama, the many Christian rites of the church will be observed, and the preparations of weeks will be culminated in events of spiritual enrichment from dawn till dark.

More than a dozen sunrise services will be held in various churches followed by Easter breakfast. The annual Harding Memorial Easter service will be held, and the annual sunrise service of Marion Commandery No 36, Knights Templar, will be held at Epworth Methodist church. Sunday school and morning worship services will emphasize the theme of the victory of the risen Lord over the tomb, and programs of music, and dramatization will emphasize the significance of the Easter message to humanity in evening services. Four vesper services will be held with rites of baptism. Little children will be brought to the altars of many churches for dedication in services throughout the day, and young people who have recently received the rite of confirmation will take their first communion. New adult members will be welcomed. Special offerings in many churches will be dedicated for missions or special benevolent funds, and echoing the spirit of

2-Term Amendment Now Ratified by Eight States

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 5—Eight state legislatures have ratified the proposed amendment to the United States constitution which would limit the president to two terms or not more than ten years, but approval by the required majority of 36 states may require several years.

The proposal has been approved by these states—Maine, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, New Hampshire, Illinois, Delaware, and Oregon.

NEW GERMAN SETUP HINTED

Predict French May Join Their Zone with U. S., Britain, If Big 4 Disagree.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 5—Some western diplomats predicted today that if the Big Four foreign ministers fail to agree on Germany—as it appears they may—the United States and Britain would make new efforts to pull the French into the existing American-British economic merger of German occupation zones.

Some evidence was seen that the three western nations were drawing more closely together. French sources talking privately have called attention to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's occasional agreements with Secretary of State George C Marshall's proposals. Americans and British have tried so hard to meet Bidault's demand for German coal, said some officials that an agreement on this issue seems assured.

The ministers were scheduled to return today to their old dispute over powers to be vested in a prospective German government.

They skipped a meeting set for last night because a committee to prepare an agenda on political principles was not ready with its report.

The British were reported trying to force a showdown discussion on the government problem, but most diplomats were agreed that no effective moves to set up a central government in Germany could be made until basic economic questions had been settled.

This fact was seen as highlighting the extent of the stalemate blocking any action on current German problems—which would be merely preliminary to work on a German peace treaty.

The economic committee of the ministers' council was disclosed last night to have been in recess since Tuesday. One authoritative informant said it never would meet again unless somebody produced a really new proposition.

The key economic problem was Russia's demand for $10,000,000,000 in German reparations over a 20-year period, some of it from current production, and western opposition to this demand.

HOPES FOR PHONE PEACE. Labor Secretary Lewis B Schwellenbach is shown as he voiced hope for an 11th hour settlement of the dispute threatening a nationwide telephone tieup in a strike set for Monday.

TRUMAN PUTS LAST TOUCHES ON SPEECH

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 5—President Truman kept his calling list free of appointments today to complete work on his first political speech tonight since the Republicans took over congress.

Mr Truman kept himself available exclusively to members of the White House staff participating in research for the 20-minute address.

While the first draft of the speech, to be delivered at 10:30 p m was completed earlier in the week finishing touches were being added today.

Democrats guessed that the President will furnish them with some ammunition for the 1948 campaign without mentioning his own future intentions.

The occasion is the annual $100-a-plate Jefferson day dinner, which supplants the Jackson day dinners the late President Roosevelt frequently used for important political announcements. The dinner is a 2,000-ticket, $100,000 sell-out.

Mr Truman is expected to confine his remarks to sketching the Democratic party's program as he sees it, without any open assault on the Republicans which could be interpreted as breaching the two-day cooperation he has urged between the White House and congress on legislative matters.

FOUND DEAD IN DRIVEWAY AT HER HOME

Husband Taken Into Custody at Newark; Victim Run Over by Car.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 5—Mrs Reva Eyestone, 32, was found dead at approximately 2:30 a m. today in the driveway of her home near the west corporation line of Upper Sandusky, and her husband, Kenneth, 30, who was missing when the tragedy was discovered, appeared in Newark and was taken into custody for questioning by police at 10 a. m. today.

Authorities expressed the belief she had been crushed to death beneath the wheels of a motor vehicle. She was believed to have died almost instantly.

Eyestone said he had not seen his wife since 7 p m last night. He told police he had taken "a few drinks" since then, but asserted he had no idea how his wife might have met her death.

He was found after he drove his truck with a load of eggs to the Reynolds Quality Eggs store in Newark.

Wyandot county sheriff's officers left about noon for Newark and will bring Eyestone back to Upper Sandusky for further questioning. Upon their return they are scheduled to meet with Coroner Propst and Wyandot County Prosecutor Russell Price.

According to The Associated Press, Detective Chief Clyde Hupp and Detective Henry Hall accosted Eyestone at the Newark egg store and asked:

"What do you know about the death of your wife?"

Eyestone, in a shocked voice, replied:

"I don't know what you are talking about."

After the officers gave the details, Eyestone said he last saw his wife when she took their children to a movie at 7 p. m. He declined to say where he had been since then.

Wyandot County Sheriff B. H. Stansbery said Eyestone was last seen by Calvin Swartz, an Upper Sandusky night patrolman at 2 a. m. today in a restaurant at the east edge of the city where he was believed to have stopped for a cup of coffee. Patrolman Swartz said at that time Eyestone had been driving a small delivery truck.

Child Hears Screams

The woman was found in the driveway of her home on West Spring street just outside the west corporation limits by her 12-year-old daughter, Shirley Ann. The daughter told investigators she ran from the house when she heard her mother scream and found her lying in the driveway. A produce truck, loaded with eggs, which had been parked in the Eyestone garage near the house, was gone, Sheriff Stansberry said. He said the truck was not the one Eyestone had been driving when he was seen earlier by Patrolman Swartz.

The girl called a neighbor, Charles Kloepfer, who notified Sheriff Stansberry and Deputy Carl Stansberry. Wyandot County Coroner J. A. Propst also was called but he has given no verdict in the case.

Sheriff Stansberry said he did not know why the woman was out of the house at that time of night.

The body was taken to the Bringman and Co. funeral home here where attendants said the woman had died suddenly and that her body had been crushed, causing them to believe she had been struck by a vehicle.

The woman's body was believed to have been found within a few minutes after the tragedy occurred.

Besides her daughter, Shirley Ann, Mrs. Eyestone is survived by twin sons, Donald Dean and Ronald Jean, age 10, her mother, Mrs. Bessie Bell Althause of Eden township, Wyandot county; four sisters, Mrs. Eula Sortland of Eden township, Mrs. Ruth Sawmiller of Indiana, Mrs. Anne Barton of East Wyandot avenue, Upper Sandusky and Mrs. Mary Walton of Michigan.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

One Day Left For Voters To Register

Marion residents have only one more day in which to register or transfer for the May 6 primary elections. The deadline is Monday at 9 a m.

Election board officials said today they believed there were "hundreds" of persons in the city who must yet transfer to be eligible to vote. Registrations and transfers have been slow this week, they said, averaging approximately 25 a day. Total registration now stands at approximately 14,700.

The election board office will be open until 9 p m tonight and Monday night to enable residents to register and transfer before the deadline.

Those who must register, election board officials pointed out, include persons who have failed to vote in any election within the last two years, those who will become 21 years old before the November election, or those who have moved into the city. Persons who must transfer include those who have moved from one city precinct to another since last voting.

Roman Bells Ring Out As Troubled Italy Fetes Easter

Special to The Star

ROME, April 5—More than a thousand bells, from the humble instruments of convents to the deep throated bronzes of St. Peter's Basilica, rang today to herald once again the Easter eve.

Romans were celebrating the holiday despite economic troubles reflected in sharply higher prices.

From many tables, said Il Giornale Della Sera, the traditional Easter lamb, the chocolate soldiers, and cakes will be missing, "but Romans will know how to make holiday in their hearts," it said.

Throughout the streets of the city priests, attended by altar boys, entered homes and offices, sprinkling them with holy water while saying: "Peace be in this house and upon all who live in it."

Services already were being held in most of the city's more than 400 churches. They will culminate tomorrow with a Pontifical mass at St. Peter's. Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, archpriest of the Basilica, will officiate.

DAILY LENTEN MEDITATIONS

IN THE CHRIST OF THE CROSS WE GLORY

Today's Text:—"And He is the propitiation for our sins and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world." I John 2:2.

* * *

WE GLORY in the cross of Christ because by the cross Christ became the full satisfaction for the sins of the world. By His vicarious sufferings and death, Jesus atoned for all sins, for original or birth sin, for actual or all sins of acts, for sins of omission and commission, or secret sins and open sins, for sins—whether they be in thought, word or deed.

Jesus rendered a full, complete and all-sufficient satisfaction to the Father for the entire guilt and the full punishment resting upon the world of mankind for sin. Jesus paid the entire bill in full, once and for all, so that His sacrifice need never be repeated for man's redemption.

Therefore, Christianity is the religion of pure grace. It offers men redemption from sin, death, and hell, and bestows eternal life and salvation, not on the basis of the merits or good deeds of men, but wholly and alone on the basis of the merits of Christ which He earned when He died on the cross.

When we understand fully our religion of pure grace, we have not even the faintest desire for any other kind of religion. There can be nothing better, greater, finer, grander, more glorious than the religion of God's saving grace through Christ and His cross.

REV. M. E. HOLLENSEN,
Pastor, Emanuel Lutheran Church.

In Loving Memory
★Of Pfc. Wilbert J. (Webb) Alexander, who lost his life four years ago, March 30, 1943.
This day brings sad memories
Of our loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him each day
Are the ones who loved him best.
Friends may think we have forgotten him
When they see us smile,
But little do they know the sorrow
That is hid behind a smile.
Just when his days seemed brightest,
Just when his hopes seemed best,
God called him from among us to his eternal rest.
Sadly missed, but God knows best.

Excerpt from Editorial
★In March issue of Ohio Messenger by Editor-in-Chief, Miss Mary B. Ervin. Wesley Fesler, the new coach of Ohio State's football team in an interview a few days ago, made these statements and I quote:
"We definitely will have a set of training rules that will be strictly enforced. But I want to emphasize that I'm not going to be dictatorial about it.
"I'm going to set up my training rules here the same way—by mutual agreement with the boys on the squad. In other words, they set the rules. The only one I require is the no-drinking rule. I absolutely will not tolerate drinking.
"However, once those rules are agreed upon, they'll be strictly enforced. I won't stand for any funny business, not for an instant, no matter who the boy may be."

DROPPING OF PORTAL SUIT O.K.'D BY U. S.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., April 5 — The Sixth U. S. circuit court of appeals had notice today from Attorney General Tom Clark that the government offered no objection to dismissal of the Mt. Clemens Pottery Co. portal pay test case.

Counsel for the workers at the Mt. Clemens, Mich., plant had asked the court to drop their appeal from Federal District Judge Frank A. Picard's adverse decision. The Detroit judge denied the workers portal pay on the ground the amount involved was inconsequential.

The attorney general informed the court of appeals yesterday that the government "while not consenting to the dismissal of this case, urges no objection thereto." Clark said, however, that he still was "of the opinion that an early supreme court review would be desirable."

In a memorandum, Clark noted that the principals in the litigation had agreed to an irrevocable dismissal of the case.

The Mt. Clemens suit was the first of a series of portal pay cases throughout the nation aggregating some $6,000,000,000 in claims.

4 Investigations Begin In Illinois Rail Crash

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 5—Four separate investigations today sought to learn how a 14-ton tractor broke loose from its moorings on a railroad flat car and fell onto the path of a speeding Burlington railroad streamliner, causing the deaths of two persons as the train was derailed.

Witnesses saw the tractor topple from a west-bound freight train a few seconds before the eight-car Twin City Zephyr, bound from Minneapolis-St. Paul to Chicago at 73 miles an hour, arrived. The diesel locomotive overturned, two coaches smashed into the suburban Downers Grove station, and the remainder were derailed.

Marlow Recites the ABC's Of Threatened 'Phone Walkout

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, April 5—Here's an ABC on the threatened telephone strike.

A strike—the call was issued for 6 a. m. Monday—would hurt most the long-distance and toll systems.

Dial systems, being mechanical, could keep on going a while before a breakdown.

James Marlow

Attorney General Clark says the government has authority to seize the telephones. Maybe it will. Maybe not.

The dispute: between a number of unions and a number of companies.

Demands by the union: pay raises and other things.

Biggest stumbling block: the size of demands.

The unions have sought a nationwide settlement to make pay more equal everywhere.

Want Local Settlements

The companies have held out for a company-by-company settlement so each company's agreement would fit its own local conditions.

Directly involved in the threatened walkout: about 337,000 of this country's 550,000 unionized telephone workers.

Other thousands of union telephone workers, not striking themselves, could help the strikers by refusing to go to work through picket lines.

The workers, mostly women, include operators, maintenance men, and so on.

The two sides in the dispute:

1. The Bell system's 23 companies and some independent companies the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is parent of the Bell system.

2. The National Federation of Telephone Workers, an independent union, and some unions not connected with NFTW.

Union Demands Listed

The talks between the unions and the companies began last January. Briefly, these have been the union's demands:

1. A minimum increase of $12 a week everywhere.

2. More than $12 a week in some places to make pay more equal everywhere; a union shop (anyone hired must join the union), and so on.

The company says the average weekly pay of telephone workers is $46.21. The unions say it's $44.10.

In rough outline, here are the two arguments:

The union—

Telephone workers are paid much less than workers in other industries and raises are needed to meet higher living costs.

The companies—

1. When you remember so many telephone workers are women, their pay is comparable to that in other industries.

2. Making the pay of workers everywhere more equal would mean, not a $12 increase, but in some places an increase of as much as $31 weekly.

Company Stand Reported

Through the weeks of talks, this has been the companies' stand:

1. On everything but wages, let's keep talking to reach a settlement.

2. Let's turn the wage problem over to an arbitrator (an outside party), provided he judges the wage demands on the basis of wages paid in various communities for work similar to telephone work.

As the strike deadline drew near, the unions wanted no part of the companies' area-by-area arbitration proposal but were willing to arbitrate on a national basis.

336,000 Membership Claimed

The NFTW has 49 unions and claims a membership of 336,000. Thirty-nine of those unions, or all but 10, threatened the strike. They have a membership of 287,000.

(The contracts of those 39 have expired. Those of the other 10 will stay in effect some time. That's why they made no strike threat.

(But the 49,000 members of the 10 non-striking unions, according to NFTW hopes, would not cross picket lines of the 39 unions' 287,000).

In unions not connected with NFTW about 50,000 workers have been making similar demands.

So, besides its own 287,000 people ready to go out Monday, NFTW looked to the other 50,000 non-NFTW workers to join them.

FIRE IN CHILDREN'S BOARDING HOME PROBED. Ohio state welfare department is investigating conditions at the Columbus boarding home where two children died and seven others were injured when a flash fire trapped them in their second-story bedroom (top). Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, proprietors of the independent boarding home, had been advised Feb. 26, according to Child Welfare Supervisor Mary S. King, that their home was certified for not more than two children. Burned about the face, body and legs, one-year-old Robert Thompson (left) is held by Nurse Mary Breen at Mt. Carmel hospital, where hospital attendants administer oxygen to his "roommate," 10-year-old Betty Thompson. (International News Photo)

BLASTING BELIEVED MINE TRAGEDY CAUSE

By The Associated Press

CENTRALIA, Ill., April 5—A belief that "blasting provided the ignition that set off a dust explosion" in the Centralia coal mine where 111 miners died March 25, has been expressed by State Mine Inspector Driscoll O. Scanlan, in testimony before a three-man U. S. senate sub-committee investigating the tragedy.

Scanlon also told the senators last night that dynamite improperly tamped with coal dust "could have been the source of the blast."

The senate sub-committee sought to end the Centralia phase of its hearings today. Meanwhile, a 10-member Illinois legislative group planned a tour of the ill-fated shaft.

The state factfinders requested transcripts of voluminous testimony submitted to the U. S. senators, including a denial by a former state mines director that politics was linked with mine inspection, as charged by Scanlan.

Robert M. Medill, state mines director who resigned last Tuesday after Scanlan accused him of failing to support Scanlan's plea to shut down the Centralia Coal Company No. 5 mine, denied he had asked inspectors policing the mines to solicit Republican election campaign funds from mine owners.

Uncle Sam, Trustee

WITH Russia thoughtfully fingering its veto gun but deciding not to use it, the United Nations delegated to the United States trusteeship over the Pacific islands which once spearheaded the Japanese attack.

A trusteeship might be described as baby-sitting on a global scale. To Uncle Sam is delegated authority to oversee the welfare and protection of a large portion of what ethnologists call Oceania. Under United States supervision comes a wide assortment of palm-fringed islands and atolls, some uninhabited, others peopled by natives of varying degrees of intelligence, from the savages of Melanesia to the Polynesians with their skills and native culture.

The United States, which was the principal force in wresting these islands from the Japanese, is the logical recipient of this trusteeship. While they may have wondered why they were worth fighting for at the time, a couple of million Pacific veterans would have questioned the efficacy of a UN which placed the islands in the care of any other nation

First the Foundation

THE state senate has passed the Daniels-Cramer bill to raise Ohio school standards. The house will open hearings on the bill in a few days.

The bill's purpose is to modernize Ohio's school foundation law, which was passed in 1938 to establish a financial floor under the public school system. It is more than a salary relief measure. That happens to be the aspect of greatest immediate interest because of current agitation to raise schoolteachers' pay.

The long-range effect of passing the Daniels-Cramer bill in anything like the form approved by the senate would be the continued improvement of public school standards. This cannot be done without the more adequate financing which the bill makes possible.

The principle of state standards for public-school education was established in 1912 under Governor Cox. Before that time, public schools were run on a catch-as-catch-can basis. For a third of a century, Ohio's schools have been getting better. The Daniels-Cramer bill in 1947 is merely the means of assuring their continued improvement by allocating a larger share of state funds.

Confederate Spies

"THEIR agents are among us constantly," says Ohio State Coach Wesley Fesler of scouts from southern universities who are on the prowl in Ohio communities for young athletes willing to dedicate themselves to the glory of Dixie football in return for a college education and certain—ah—emoluments.

If Mr. Fesler had said this in a whisper, the effect would have been more melodramatic, but proselyting is not a melodramatic activity. The bland accent, the southern courtliness, the extolling of everything southern in the Senator Claghorn manner, the hale stranger with tales of far-off hills being greener—these are what Ohio's scholastic athletes should be on the lookout for.

Ohio State's coach gives a sage word of caution when he says that in the hands of a football bum or a tramp athlete a southern college diploma may have no more value than a Confederate shin-plaster.

Business Opportunity

ONE Londoner, worrying about England's economic plight, wrote to his newspaper suggesting Britain round up its Communists and set them up in the guerrilla business in the Scottish hills. "The rest is easy," he wrote. "We just apply to America for economic aid."

Korea, Italy, Iran and the Netherlands are due to get in line for financial assistance. There are other prospects. Every banana republic has its dissident minority, its defeated presidential candidate who feels he was robbed out of his job. There doubtless are some among these minorities who call themselves Communists.

There seems to be a business opportunity here for the United States. Maybe we can hang out a sign: "Uncle Sam's Service Station—Coups Quashed at All Hours—We Fix Flat Countries."

A Start, at Least

ARE DRIVERS acquiring a belated sense of caution and responsibility? The national picture indicates they may be.

In the first two months of 1947, the traffic fatality rate has dropped 17 per cent below the comparable 1946 period and 10 per cent below the same months in 1941. This considerable decline could be indicative of a trend. Or it could mean that drivers are slowing down and taking better care of their cars against the day when they can trade them in for juiced-up post-war models.

The two-month fatality total stands at the appalling figure of 4,510. The nation has a long, long way to go before that total falls to a reasonable level. At any rate, a start has been made.

Domestic Communism

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Reds Here Greater Problem to U. S. Than Russia.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5 — While socialite statesmen like George Earle and Bill Bullitt are rattling their knives and forks at Russia, other people are concerned with a more immediate Communist problem. We need, under any circumstances, a state of domestic security. And that involves doing something effective about Communists in the United States. If we cannot eliminate the Communist beam in our own eye, how shall we pluck out the Communist mote in foreign eyes?

It is necessary, in the first place, to draw a distinction between a policy toward Communism in our own country and a foreign policy toward the Soviet Union itself. The latter is a problem of diplomacy; the former, a domestic police problem. The domestic problem comes first.

Under Other Names

The number of Communists in this country is no measure of the task. Here in California, for instance, there are 8,553 Communists. But a whole range of real and phony organizations are Communist in every respect but the name. There is plenty of anonymous infiltration. And a real danger of sabotage is present in peace or in war. Clearly there ought to be federal legislation. That legislation should provide for effective, intelligent and vigorous action.

But legislation must be based on clear definitions of what we are attempting to do. First, we want to outlaw any organization or person whose purpose is to injure our economic or political system by any form of violence or material force. Second, we want to prevent the control or material support of any American party or organization by a foreign government. If we attempt to do either of these things without linking them together we shall involve ourselves in great complications.

Can Cover Up Early

Communists can change their professed principles to suit any occasion. They could, and probably would, adopt a wholly innocuous party creed. On the other hand, if we try to prevent all foreign political information and propaganda, we shall be hitting dozens of activities in this country which are supported by foreign governments and which are either useful to us or quite harmless. Therefore, the two objectives must be obtained in a single prohibition.

We should, in short, define as criminal any foreign-supported or directed activity in this country which advocates the overthrow or impairment of our institutions by force or violence.

Political parties which come under this definition would be outlawed. After all, the taxpayers support elections, and the law protects political activities. We should not be required to pay for efforts aimed at the destruction of our institutions. It goes without saying that all persons whose loyalty is impaired under these definitions should hold no public office or job. A labor union harboring such an individual as an officer or member should be told to purge itself under penalty of losing its privileges under the law. All "front" organizations should purge themselves or be prosecuted as illegal organizations

Protection Essential

It is impossible in this space to draw all the ifs, ands, and wherefores that would be required in legislation to protect the legitimate right of Americans to hold and advocate unorthodox views. We want no witch hunt under the guise of protective law. But we cannot afford, in the light of approved facts, to permit our internal security and unity to be undermined. The first objective of a state is to protect itself.

Who Cares About IQ? What System Does He Use?

Does this officially mark the passing of the oldtime grid mentor whose belabored "X" graced all the better autograph collections?

Formerly, if a coach was a five-letter man, he didn't have to know about the other 21

But football coaching has become a highly competitive profession in which, to be successful, a man must have knowledge of matters far beyond such fundamentals as blocking, tackling and keeping the alumni placated.

Most schools choose their coaches with more care than they do their treasurers. After all, the latter can always be bonded.

They conduct thorough investigations into every prospect's genealogy, background, character, education, environment and won-loss record.

Still, I hardly see how a written examination can be considered a fair test of the most important question concerning a potential coach: "Does he know where any talent is?"

Britain's Money Going Fast

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE is still some time left to prepare measures against the great postwar crisis, which is developing in Europe and will surely, if it is not checked and prevented, affect the whole world.

The Greek affair, so suddenly thrust upon us, and the inevitable disagreement at Moscow on reparations are only two symptoms among many others of the gravity of the situation.

The crisis is developing because none of the leading nations of Europe—Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany—is recovering from the war, or has any reasonable prospect of recovery with the means at its disposal and on the plans and policies upon which it is now working. The nations of Europe are eking out a precarious existence. They are staving off the collapse of their currencies and of their present standards of life, not by successful production but only by using up their dwindling assets and the loans, the subsidies, and doles which come from Canada, the United States, and in small amounts from the few other solvent countries.

The danger of a European economic collapse is the threat that hangs over us and all the world.

I do not believe I am exaggerating. I am saying only what informed and responsible men say when they do not have to keep up appearances in public.

If it sounds sensational, it is because the men who realize the truth of it are reluctant to advertise it. Our own officials shrink from the ordeal of explaining it to Senator Taft and those who see things as he does

British Official Line

The British government, intent on sustaining the morale of the people and on exhorting them to greater sacrifice and effort, has chosen to take the line in its official propaganda that we must not be alarmist, and that they have the situation in hand. They are, if I may say so, acting as if the spirit of Churchill after Dunkerque could be aroused by a policy which is like that of Chamberlain before Norway.

In any event, the United States, which will be the receiver if there is a collapse, needs to be awakened, not put comfortably to sleep with assurances that are true enough, but not relevant to the practical realities of the case, about the character of the British people. After Dunkerque, the British fought on superbly. But neither Churchill nor Lothian in Washington failed to use his powers of persuasion to make this country realize that the war could not be won without American assistance.

The British had about six billion dollars of hard money at the beginning of this year. They are using it up at the rate of two billions a year.

There is no prospect as things stand now, even if their plans work nearly perfectly, that they can do more than postpone the day when their funds are exhausted

Even to do that, they will be compelled to do elsewhere what they have done in Greece. The time is not far off when, except for token forces perhaps, they will have to withdraw from Germany, leaving the whole of western Germany—that is to say most of Germany—to the United States.

This will leave us isolated in Europe, face to face with the Russians in the heart of a continent which — let us not deceive ourselves — dreads more than anything else the prospect of being used as the arena of conflict between Russia and America.

London Is Center

The economic collapse of Britain—if it is not dealt with thoroughly before it occurs — will spread economic dislocation and have political repercussions throughout all the regions of the world which are within the sterling area.

London is still the financial and political center of an immense part of the globe. The financial margin on which it is operating is so thin—it will be perhaps four billions at the end of this year—that there is no safety in it. Everything must come out right. Nothing unexpected must happen. The British people must do voluntarily what no people has ever done, except under compulsion. The margin of time is very short—two years if we prefer to be optimistic rather than prudent.

The truth is that political and economic measures on a scale which no responsible statesman has yet ventured to hint at will be needed in the next year or so. To prevent the crisis which will otherwise engulf Europe and spread chaos throughout the world, the measures will have to be very large—in Europe no less than an economic union, and over here no less than the equivalent of a revival of lend-lease. To deal with the crisis, if it is not prevented, the measures will have to be infinitely larger and much more dangerous.

I know how unwelcome these predictions are. I wish it were not so evident that they are true.

Lagging Germans

Negative as well as positive reports have value. In the current opening of the books on German industrial practices and scientific developments we may profit by discovering their mistakes and their shortcomings as well as by learning their successes. They weren't superior. In the matter of automatic controls in manufacturing, for instance, the Germans were 10 to 15 years behind American industry. Hand labor was cheap compared with labor in America and batch methods were used more than continuous processes.—O.S.U. Science and Appliance.

The Foundation in Danger

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON, April 5—The fact is unpleasant but must be faced. The bi-partisan foreign policy, which is the foundation of American unity in the present world crisis, is in serious danger of being undermined. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's amendment permitting the United Nations to abrogate our aid to Greece was significant in itself, as a wise effort to clarify the issues in the national debate on foreign policy. But it was still more significant that Senator Vandenberg offered his amendment without consulting any of his Democratic colleagues.

This is the real reason for the curiously muffled response to Vandenberg's astute move, which ought to have been welcomed by everyone.

Being taken unawares, the White House and the Democratic leadership were decidedly upset. The Democratic senate chieftains especially were caught between wind and water.

At the senate Democratic policy committee meeting subsequent to Vandenberg's disclosure of his amendment, open opposition to the amendment was seriously debated.

Several of the senators present rather thoughtlessly advocated making an issue of Vandenberg's unilateral action. The upshot was that the senate Democratic leader, Alben W. Barkley, was commissioned to discuss the whole problem in detail with Vandenberg.

Symptoms

This is symptomatic of the deterioration of the bi-partisan relationship, as is the amendment itself.

Vandenberg's decision to offer the amendment without warning to anyone was made as a result of three elements in the situation which have been visibly troubling him. First, Secretary of State George C. Marshall has made no effort to establish the same confidential relations with the Republican policy leader as existed between Vandenberg and Byrnes. Second, Senator Tom Connally, senior member of the senate foreign relations committee, has shown little inclination to back up Vandenberg since the Republicans captured the congressional majority.

Third, Vandenberg strongly believes there was truth in Harold Stassen's often-quoted remark. This was the statement that the administration did not include the Republicans in the "foreign policy take-offs, but only in the crash landings."

The phrase, "bi-partisan foreign policy," is all-embracing in its implications, yet the Republicans have never even been invited to discuss such vital aspects of foreign policy as the Chinese and South American problems. Feeling that he may later be asked to share responsibility for Chinese policy, as he has been for Greek policy, Vandenberg has felt an unconcealed disquiet. The fact that the bi-partisan relationship was deteriorating has recently been called to the attention of President Truman by men whom he trusts on Capitol Hill. He has been urged, as the best remedy, to broaden the base and strengthen the structure of the whole machinery of bi-partisanship. But he has been reluctant to act, principally because he has his natural share of the same party feelings which are rising among the Republicans. Meanwhile the deterioration is being furthered daily by the President's increasing political strength. It was much easier for the Republicans to cooperate with the President when they pitied him, than it is now when they begin to fear him.

Two Ominous Factors

Altogether, the situation has the makings of first rate mess If it is analyzed, it will be seen to contain two main danger promoting factors. Some purely personal such as that beween Vandenberg and his old teammate, Connally. And the impersonal, institutional relationship of the bi-partisan foreign policy is also reliable.

Fortunately none of the other personalities involved can be called immature or petty. The personal factor can be eliminated But it can only be eliminated by removing the institutional factor. And the way to do this is to accept the obvious truth that the bi-partisan foreign policy is a major constitutional innovation, and will not last unless it is treated as such.

This will entail doing certain things and avoiding certain others, on both sides. Senator Vandenberg, for example, will not again indulge in a major policy pronouncement without discussing it at the state department, as he did at Cleveland on the subjects of South America and China. The administration will not again allow the gossip at White House receptions to convey the first news to the Republicans of the appointment of a new secretary of state, as was done when Marshall succeeded Byrnes. The rule must be constant, full mutual frankness, and continuous mutual consultation.

Daily Bible Thought

The memory of these evil deeds was a thorn in his flesh the rest of his life. Cruel, brutal deeds may be forgiven, but we cannot forget them: "As for Saul he made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and hailing men and women, committed them to prison."—Acts 8.3.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Wanna Be an Eagle?

The individual, formfit, quick detachable helicopter is at hand. Slipped on, as it were, over the head, requiring no time to adjust and able to take you aloft by zipper.

* * *

It is called the Hopp.-Copter. It really outboard-motorizes you for life among the barn swallows

* * *

It is guaranteed to do for you in the air what an outboard engine will do for a canoe in the water, only more so. All we hope is that it has big letters on it—"BE SURE TO CHECK GAS BEFORE PULLING STARTER-CORD"

* * *

We don't want to get up 1,000 feet over the picket fences and discover that we forgot about fuel.

* * *

In one adaptation the new invention can be used instead of a parachute. You can throw it over your shoulders, step out of a plane and glide down as if taking the elevator in a department store. If not in a hurry to come down, you can play around in the clouds awhile

* * *

For all we know a good operator can change his mind and get back into the mother ship

* * *

But the big merchandising possibilities are seen in its use by the masses as a substitute for the flivver. No traffic signs, no dead ends, no hydrants, no "No Parking" signs. Just strap on the one-man, demi tasse easy-to-wear-copter, pull the string and . . zippee! . . you are an airborne commuter, the equal of the eagle and the superior of the wild goose, the redheaded woodpecker, the busy bee and the runaway bobsled.

* * *

It is less complicated than a motorcycle, and has no possum tails attached. We trust it is quieter. And that there is no room for the girl friend behind. Unless she is air-conditioned and motorized for flight.

* * *

It may not be long before Little Willie will be equipped with blades to dash to the grocery for a loaf of bread, Father buttoned up in gadgets to fly him to the Elks' picnic and Mother fanning her way over the housetops toward the fire sale.

* * *

We were about to order one today. Two things stopped us. How to get a set of spare blades and a rumor we might have to stop in midair to have the old ones honed.

Vernal Void

Spring is a sham—a fraud—a mock
Without the rich brew known as bock.

AVERY GILES

"General Marshall attended the 'Nutcracker Suite' at the Boston Theater."—News item

Probably had a nice evening thinking of some of the nuts he wouldn't mind cracking.

THOUGHTS ON A PHONE STRIKE

Congress is talking of rushing through a law that will empower the government to stop a telephone strike by injunction. It fears, as we do, that nothing would tie up this nation more completely than a stoppage of telephone service. After all there are only four or five men left in America so old that they once learned how to do things without telephoning to somebody.

* * *

Not in several generations has the average man been able to transact any business without holding one little black gadget to an ear and gassing into another little black gadget. With women, a telephoneless world would be even more unthinkable. Take away her telephone service and not a scandal will move!

* * *

But we see the real disaster in what will happen to men's stomachs. With all phones dead they will be unable to phone that they won't be home for dinner. They will HAVE to get home and EAT THE WIFE'S COOKING.

A top official of the Communist party in America thinks it perfectly proper for an official of a straight-shooting political party to refuse to give the people of the United States his real name and his past record. Maybe he himself doesn't want to know about himself.

Do you remember when two could live as cheaply as one? "Now not even one can do it," says Elmer Twitchell.

Man 'O War is 30 years old. He attributes his long life and perfect health to the fact that at the age of three he decided to keep away from race tracks.

No Thanks

By TRUMAN TWILL

We have been listening to the woes of a man who has not worn a hat for 17 years, but recently decided that for appearance he should join the parade He has been traveling, he explains, and people keep asking him how he lost his hat, finding it impossible to believe he doesn't own one.

So this gent began to look over the kinds of hat he might buy in order to look as funny as other men. He studied the wilted-lettuce-leaf type, a favorite among males who fancy themselves as part-time eccentrics. They achieve the effect by buying the cheapest hat they can find and giving it to a bear to play with for six months. Then they take it back and wear it for six years.

He made a survey of the light-under-a-bushel model, which threatens to slip down over its wearer's ears and eyes and black him out, not such a bad idea in view of the type of joker usually associated with this comic effect.

He pursed his lips as he looked over the ear benders—the hats that are too deep in the crown, or the wearer is too short in the beam, or something is wrong, because one of the wearer's ears is bent at right angles.

He tittered as he took in the effect of a derby on the ordinary male, who looks as if he had rigged himself out as an apprentice structural steel worker.

He felt sad in behalf of mankind when he saw what happens to the so-called snap-brim models, which do not snap but only droop.

He wondered whither mankind when he noticed men with heads shaped like footballs wearing hats for basketballs, and men whose heads have no shape at all trying to mold them into something approximately a 6⅞ butter crock.

He looked at 10-gallon hats in Texas, gangster head-pieces in Chicago, men-of-affairs offerings in New York and souped-up rooty-tooty jobs in Florida and California.

He gave consideration to fur pieces, aviator's helmets, St. Patrick's Day silk toppers, playboy collapsibles, cloth caps, field-hand straws, and Turkish wrap-arounds.

And he decided that men—as men go—all look like the devil in the hats they wear and he'd rather have people wondering why he doesn't wear a hat than to have them wondering if he is wearing one because he found it in the gutter and is too tight to throw it away.

Pistol-Packin' Frauleins

BERLIN — Berlin police are fighting an increasing crime rate among women, some of whom are turning gun-women for banditry and murder in this postwar era of low morality and great need.

Holdups recently have been reported in the Russian sector of the city which were staged by a pistol-packing woman. Before a Berlin court recently came a 15-year-old girl who was charged with the axe murder of an aged woman.

These are the more vivid entries in a scarlet record. The crime rate for women here is still far below that of men, but whereas in the past women's offenses were chiefly thievery, swindle or prostitution, crimes of violence are now increasing.

The Victory of the Cross

A Sermonette
By REV. HENRY MAAG
Pastor of Prospect Street Methodist Church

Acts 2:23-24—"This Jesus . . . you crucified and killed . . . God raised Him up, having loosed the pangs of death, because it was not possible for Him to be held by it."

DURING this past Lenten season our attention has been directed to the Cross of Christ, as a symbol of suffering and death. here are words that travel from age to age and language to language, gathering romance round them as they go. One of these is the word "victory." From Palm Sunday to the Day of His Resurrection our thoughts often turned to the "Via Dolorosa" and imaginatively we reconstructed the tremendous scene when Pilate finally had given sentence that it should be as they required, and Jesus, bearing His cross, went forth to Calvary, and "there they crucified Him." It is easy for us to sing now,

"The royal banners forward go,
The Cross shines forth in mystic glow,"

but in that hour of darkness the Cross looked like anything but a royal banner and it had no mystic glow at all. It was a rugged Cross, an instrument of death, a token of shame. It was an instrument of torture so terrible that the daughters of Jerusalem had good reason for their weeping. It was a badge of disgrace, so infamous that a civilization could devise none other or deeper.

It was at the Cross when the appalling nature of sin was revealed; there sin laid its impious hand upon the Son of God and sought to destroy Him. There sin did its worst. "There is no other problem of evil so terrific as the Cross." People were there from all parts of the country to witness the crucifixion. Pharisee, scribe, high priest, tradesman, the common people, trying to get a better view of the innocent victim. Had you been there when they crucified the Lord, you could have heard the cruel mockings of the chief priests, the coarse jesting of the scribes, the railing of the multitude, while at His feet the soldiers gambled for His raiment. None of His friends were near, save the Marys and John, the disciple whom Jesus loved. "At noon a strange thing happened, darkness covered the land. About midafternoon He cried with a loud voice and yielded up His spirit. What a solemn hour that was! As the shades of evening were falling His life-less body was reverently taken down from the Cross and laid to rest in Joseph's rock-hewn tomb." Judas had gone the way of the world, a victim of despair. Peter with genuine, heartfelt repentance and tears had acknowledged his unfaithfulness to His Master and friend.

It is not difficult for us to enter into the experience of the disciples when all seemed lost on the day their Lord was crucified. Their hopes lay buried in a tomb that was sealed by the Roman authority, and Roman soldiers with clanking swords, broke the silence of death which brooded over the grave.

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform." Soon the foes were disillusioned, and the sorrow of helpless, weeping friends was transformed into speechless joy. Jesus the crucified one is arisen, death is swallowed up in victory.

The victory of the Cross is assured. The Cross of Calvary is a spiritual searchlight penetrating the mysteries of life, and dispelling the shadows of fear and doubt. Out of His death and resurrection have come victorious energy and death-conquering hope. Jesus knew that His seeming defeat was only the foundation upon which He would build His eternal throne. His cross is our brightest hope; our supreme challenge, it measures our souls, and inspires our lives to lofty endeavors. His Cross is our glorious victory, it illuminates our pathway and makes it "brighter and brighter unto the perfect day." Always after Good Friday with its crucifixion of righteousness and love there comes Easter Sunday. Easter means that goodness is stronger than evil, that truth is stronger than falsehood, that love will triumph over hatred.

For the disciples the "Victory of the Cross" meant that they could go on with their mission with unflickering hope. Through hardship, toil and sorrow they could go forward in the faith that the victory is already won. Let us take this message to our hearts. If we cling to His cross for salvation, and carry our own crosses for His glory, we shall most assuredly come to a triumphant end when life's journey is finished. The Church of the living Christ is moving on not to defeat but to victory, not to a sunset but to an everlasting dawn. Easter preaches this faith still.

"Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

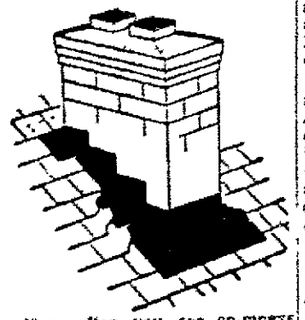
Chimney Is One of Important Details of House Construction

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

By W. Wentworth Wood

One of the most important details in the building of a house is the chimney. As a rule the construction will be solid and safe enough, but very often some of the fine points will be neglected or glossed over, and these may be the cause of some trouble a few years after the house is finished.

To begin with, all chimneys should be lined with terra cotta flue lining. This lining prevents to a great extent any accumulation of soot, because it cannot cling to the smooth surface as it can to the rough brick lining of a flue and thus the lined chimney is cleaner and safer.



Very often you see chimneys which have flue lining but do not have a beveled cap as shown by the illustration. This cement cap is necessary as it sheds water off the chimney top at once, and prevents filtration down and through the brick-work. Being vertical, the sides will shed water, but often the top will be dished, or so flat as to hold water. The cap prevents this.

The flashings around the base of a chimney are sheet-metal shields built into the four sides of the chimney, and flanging out over and under the shingles or other roof covering to prevent water from getting into the house. Too often the flashings will be of sheet-iron instead of copper, and eventually they will rust out, in spite of numerous paintings and applications of roofing compound. Flashings must be of copper or other non-rusting metal.

Another important point in connection with the flashing is that it be ample. It should be wide enough to furnish a good flange beneath the shingles, and high enough on the chimney to be above any accumulation of slush or water. Ordinary snow will not cause trouble but actual water will.

It takes a good mechanic to flash a chimney properly, and it does not take him one minute longer to install an ample one than it would take him to put in a skimpy shield. The cost of the material is hardly worth mentioning.

Mansfield High School Girl Dies in Accident

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., April 5—Mary Diane Ackerman, 15, Mansfield High school sophomore, was killed and a companion, Earl Lock, 18, a senior, was injured seriously in the crash of an automobile against a tree at nearby Lucas at midnight Thursday.

Both were riding in a rumble seat and were hurled from the machine by the impact. Two 15-year-old students riding in the car escaped with bruises.

Miss Ackerman was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul O. Ackerman of Mansfield.

Her death was the second in two days in the Mansfield area. Patricia Ann Stringfellow, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cullen Stringfellow, died Wednesday of injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile in suburban Lincoln heights.

The deaths boosted traffic fatalities to five in Richland county this year, compared with nine for the corresponding 1946 period.

Stained Tub

Q. Our bathtub has a residue deposit of soap and scouring powder. This is not a "ring" around the tub, merely a crooked line running down the center of the bottom of the tub. I have tried scouring powders without much success. Can you suggest anything else?

A. There are commercial porcelain cleaning preparations on general sale that you could try. Or you could soften the deposit with a paste made by mixing a scratchless scouring powder with kerosene. Let this remain on the stain for a while before cleaning it off. I have also found that trisodium phosphate (cleaning powder sold under a trade name at a grocery store) is excellent for neutralizing coffee stains and other stains in cooking utensils. Try running a few inches of water in the bathtub and then sprinkling in a generous handful of "triso." Let it remain for several hours. A mild laundry bleach might do the trick.

HALF OF AIRPORT LAND IS LEASED

Part of Area To Be Under Cultivation.

Approximately half of the acreage at the site of the proposed municipal airport was leased Friday for farming purposes by the city board of control composed of Mayor Harry L. Dowler and Safety-Service Director E. O. Uncapher.

All of the 644-acre tract was leased last year, but work is expected to start this summer on development of part of the site, so only land which will not be used in 1947 was leased, Uncapher said.

A 100-acre tract north of the Williamsport road was leased to D. C. Comstock of near Marion for a $360 yearly rent. A 218-acre tract was rented to James C. Neff of near Marion for $950. They submitted the only bids for rental.

No bids were received for the timber which covers about 40 acres of the airport tract. The land was formerly part of the Scioto Ordnance Plant grounds.

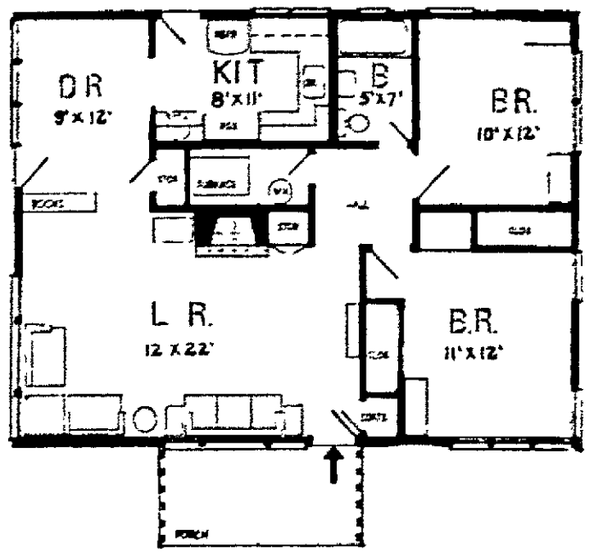
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



By The Associated Press

A compact single-story dwelling designed to meet FHA requirements and to allow for use of a 50-foot lot. W. H. Schumacher, Oklahoma City architect, drew these plans. Specifications call for wood construction and a roof of asphalt shingles. The architect identifies this plan as A-507 in working plans. Over all dimensions of the house are 26 by 36 feet. The outside dining room door opens onto a terrace, not shown here, and the kitchen door is provided with a stoop. The heater room back of the fireplace eliminates need for a basement.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Treating Sprue

Sprue is a disease which has been known for centuries but it is only in the last few years that its true nature has been understood.

According to Drs. Samuel J. Shane and Vern F. Deyke of Montreal studies made in 1935 showed for the first time that sprue is in the same general class of diseases as is pernicious anemia. That is, it is caused by lack of a certain substance the body needs in order to function properly. It was also found that, as in pernicious anemia, liver extract contains the needed material.

In sprue the missing substance is one which gives the body its ability to use fat. When it is not present fat cannot be absorbed, but is excreted in the stools. Other effects of sprue include a loss in weight, anemia, or lessening of the coloring matter in the blood and diarrhea. The acid in the stomach may also be less than normal. Usually X-ray examination will show certain changes in the lining membrane of the small intestine.

The diet used for this condition is one which is rich in protein and carbohydrates, without any fat. At the beginning of treatment, it is sometimes necessary to give what are known as protein hydrolysates by injection. These are water solutions of the amino acids or building blocks of which proteins are made. Sugar solutions such as glucose may also be given by injection into a vein if necessary.

As treatment continues, the bowel may begin to regain its ability to take up small quantities of fat. At this time fats in limited amounts may be added to the diet. Since studies have shown that liver extract is of the greatest importance in supplying the material that is deficient in the body, it is administered in adequate amounts, just as in the treatment of pernocious anemia.

Since fats are not taken up from the bowel in cases of sprue, it is also likely that the vitamins which are soluble in fats will also be lacking because they too are not taken up by the body. These include vitamins A, D and K. Hence, these vitamins must be injected into a muscle, at least until the bowel regains its ability to take up the fats which contain them. When the patient's condition improves to this extent, the vitamins may be administered by mouth.

Sprue is not a difficult condition to diagnose and with the treatment outlined it usually responds promptly.

None Attend Demonstration

— gents of the nearby villages — Hawk and Manteo thought — e of the possibility of men — ever flying that none accepted the Wrights' invitation to attend the 1903 demonstration. No newspapermen were present.

Miffed, the brothers tried to ban reporters from their next trials here in May 1908, but several newsmen watched from dunes a half mile away. Public interest had risen.

When one English reporter tried to hold the only telegraph wire out of Manteo by having the telegrapher send pages torn from a magazine, another reporter threatened to brain him with a chair. The reporters sent their copy in turn after that.

Byron Newton, later assistant secretary of the treasury, was specifically assigned to the story by the publisher of the New York Herald. When Newton conscientiously reported for several days running that the Wright machine was flying successfully he was suspended for six weeks without pay for "faking."

Cleveland Paper Doubts It

The disbelieving Cleveland Leader wired another correspondent:

"Cut out wild cat stuff."

Wilbur Wright, himself unaware of how fast aviation would grow, told a correspondent that in his opinion no machine could ever be made to fly across the ocean until something better than a gasoline engine was developed to drive it. A little boy named Charles Lindbergh wasn't old enough to refute him then.

Telegrapher Alpheus W. Drinkwater, 71, who still has the "bug" with which he sent out the news of the Wright flights in 1908, shares his wife's doubt about the airplane.

"I think it was a pity it was ever invented," said Mrs. Drinkwater who has never been in one.

"Well, it has done some good," said Alph, who dislikes flying although he has been up a few times.

"Yes, but we could have done without it," replied Mrs. Drinkwater, and took up her tatting.

Accused Heiress Plans To Wed Co-Defendant

By The Associated Press

SANTA ANA, Calif, April 5—Scheduled to be released from jail today on $50,000 bond, 17-year-old heiress Louise Overell was making plans to marry George Gollum, 21, her co-defendant on charges of murdering her parents.

Gollum, husky blonde pre-medical student, was not admitted to bail, and if Miss Overell succeeds in carrying out her plan to marry him on her 18th birthday, April 30, the ceremony will have to be performed in the county jail.

Long before the 47-foot yacht of Mr and Mrs Walter E Overell was blasted by a dynamite explosion to the bottom of Newport harbor last March 15, Louise and Gollum confided to friends they would marry as soon as she reached her majority.

SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS WIN LICENSE VICTORY

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., April 5—Church-school bus drivers for eight Protestant churches today has a legal green light to operate their conveyances without state motor vehicle licenses.

Common Pleas Judge Robert U. Martin in a temporary restraining order declared that city, county and state authorities could not arrest church-school bus drivers here because an Ohio statute permitted operation of "school buses" without payment of license fees.

The order, which will hold until April 11 when hearing for a permanent injunction is scheduled, was a victory for the eight churches in the first round of a battle to have all Ohio Protestant church-school buses exempted from the state's motor vehicle license tax.

Rev. Robert E Stone, pastor of the Edgmont Church, of the Nazarene and spokesman for the other churches, said that more than $20,000 had been spent by Ohio Protestant churches in license fees for their school-bus services.

He declared that a second suit would be brought before the Ohio court of appeals, May 3, at Columbus to test the legal definition of "the word 'school.'"

Issuing the restraining order, Judge Martin said that the churches had acted legally—by purchasing licenses—after law enforcement officers threatened arrests unless the tags were installed on buses.

Church-school officials also were advised by Edward T. Fogo, state motor vehicles registrar, that only "academic school buses" were exempt, Judge Martin said

MORE THAN HALF U. S. FARM LANDS ERODED

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 5 — More than half this nation's farmland have been seriously injured by soil erosion, and unless the country goes all out for land conservation, the United States might wind up a second rate power, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson asserted today.

Anderson, in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual Oklahoma Save-the-Soil Clinic here, pointed out that 282,000,000 acres of crop and grazing land either had been ruined or badly damaged He added that another 775,000 000 acres of crop, grazing, forest and other land show scars of considerable erosion.

Anderson said each year erosion is estimated to cost the country close to four billion dollars

He said China, Babylon, Greece and Rome once were great powers, but soil erosion had caused their downfall

"On the assets side of the ledger, we can list only 460,000,000 acres of good cropland remaining in the United States, and most of this can not safely be cultivated without conservation farming practices," Anderson said.

Dry Ice, Shot From Airplane, Produces Snowfall in Oregon

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore., April 5—A man went upstairs yesterday to make snow again, this time seeding the clouds like a farmer does his fields and producing a snowfall in a long, straight line

Col. E S Ellison, senior meteorologist of the Portland weather bureau did the seeding, tossing handfuls of dry ice pellets out of the rear cockpit of an airplane over uninhabited hill country east of here.

This was at 10,000 feet. Then the airplane dived down under the clouds at 4,000 feet and there was a long slender line of a snowfall extending five to ten miles directly under the path that Col. Ellison had seeded, he reported on landing.

They followed the flakes down to within 800 feet of the ground, noting that most of them melted as they neared the warm earth, turning into a thin line of rain, he said.

The weather man added that he used 17 pounds of dry ice—frozen carbon dioxide—in the experiment, and estimated that the resulting snow and rain totaled hundreds of tons

A newspaper, the Oregonian, which co-sponsored the experiment, sent a photographer along to record the event. The pictures, somewhat dim because of the haze and distance, showed descending precipitation in an area otherwise free of rainfall.

Flood of Last-Minute Mine "Safe" Rulings Are Predicted

By The Associated Press

Only a scattered handful of the 518 soft coal mines ordered closed by the government for safety reasons were certified today as ready to resume operation Monday but a coal mines administration spokesman in the rich Pittsburgh district predicted "a flood of last minute certifications."

Another federal official predicted 25 per cent of the mines deemed unsafe would be ready to reopen at the end of the AFL-United Mine Workers' six-day mourning period, for the victims of the Centralia, Ill., mine disaster. The 518 mines in 19 states normally produce 616,600 tons daily, or about one-quarter of the nation's total

Call for Caution

Some UMW leaders called for caution in agreeing with mine operators in certification of mine safety but the department of interior said at Washington that pits could be reopened—regardless of the union's attitude—if Secretary Krug so ordered after receiving reports of a federal reinspection.

The alternative method calls for operators and union safety committees to declare the mines safe and for the navy to issue its certification of safety.

In Pennsylvania, second largest producing state, only nine of 153 mines closed for safety reasons were ready to reopen Monday. Richard J. Maize, state secretary of mines, however, declared state inspection reports revealed few of the violations charged by the federal government.

Apply for Certification

Operators of 23 of Alabama's 35 closed mines applied for federal certification and were awaiting federal reinspections. At Chicago, the coal mines administration reported no closed shafts in Illinois, Indiana or Iowa had been given permission to reopen

Spokesmen for the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Co. in Ohio said three pits were expected to resume production early next week. They were among 57 Ohio workings ordered closed.

In Arkansas, State Mine Inspector J W Pitzjarrell said he believed the 19 affected mines in the state were "safe" and the Virginia labor commissioner, John Hopkins Hall Jr. declared some of the 25 mines there were safe according to state inspection reports.

Local Agrees on Safety

An operators spokesman in New Mexico said one of the state's two closed mines presumably would reopen since the local union agreed it was "in safe condition to operate."

Meanwhile, as the mourning period neared an end the Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Maryland railroads said their coal traffic in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia had dropped sharply during the past week.

Elsewhere, the greatest effect of the work stoppage by the nation s 400,000 soft coal miners apparently was in steel mills where some plants were forced to curtail production for lack of coke. The coke-producing beehive ovens are manned by UMW members. earth's upper atmosphere with a man-made meteorites into the industry generally appeared to German V-2 rocket. The first atbe blessed with adequate stock- tempt last Dec. 17 has been classed piles to see it through the week. as a failure.

yesterday that the industry could be seized under the federal communications act but an official close to the situation said flatly that seizure has so far received no serious consideration.

The telephone lines will be taken over only after the strike begins—if it does—and then only if that seems the way to bring order to the situation, this official asserted.

If the walkout comes, it will be the nation's first cross-country communications strike.

President Joseph A. Beirne of the NFTW, which is independent of the AFL and CIO, challenged the Clark opinion, but left unanswered the $64 question.

Will the union work for the government even after seizure?

"If seizure is decided upon," Beirne said, "we will then determine what action is to be taken."

Ohio Attempts To Arrange State Phone Conference

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 5—U. S Conciliation Commissioner T. W. Robertson was attempting today to arrange a meeting for tomorrow between officials of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Ohio Federation of Telephone Workers (Ind.), which is scheduled to take part in a national strike at 6 a. m. Monday.

Union headquarters reported it had responded to Robertson's invitation by expressing a willingness to meet again with company negotiators.

In Ohio, a strike would involve up to 20,000 telephone workers about three-fourths of them members of the federation or its Ohio affiliates. Nationally and in the state, the principal issue in the impending strike is the union's demand for a wage increase of at least $12 a week.

Drop in High Costs Of Building Seen By Industry Chieftains

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 5—A drop in current high volume of building contracts, before the construction industry attains continuous recovery, is expected by a large majority of general contractors whose opinions were surveyed by F W Dodge Corp, fact-finding organization for the industry.

The survey showed 53 per cent of 268 contractors in all parts of the country believed the peak in construction costs had been reached And that the average decline expected before prices are stabilized is 14 per cent.

Only in the Pacific states, the report said, was opinion general that the peak had not been reached and contractors there anticipated further cost increases of 11 to 12 per cent in 1947

The contractors were asked to report changes in costs of various building materials since Jan 1, More than half said prices were stable except for lumber, in which a decline was reported in several areas, and Portland cement, for which increases were reported

A high majority attributed current high costs of building to labor inefficiency resulting from irregular flow of materials to delay from inadequate supply of skilled workers, and to excessive expenditure of time in shopping for and obtaining materials.

Many said the greatest contributing high-cost factors were the low productivity of building mechanics low level of skill of some craftsmen, and failure to do "a day's work for a day's pay" the report added

In the aggregate, the survey disclosed, the contractors reported 34.6 per cent of their present work by dollar volume, was being done on a lump-sum basis, while the remainder was on cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts

O.S.U. Swim Team Appears Certain To Win Tank Title

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 5—Unless someone lets the water out of the pool, or figures some other way to stop 'em, Ohio State university's fine aggregation of swimmers and divers appear certain to score their second straight national A.A.U. tank title today.

With half the 10-event program out of the way, the rampaging Bucks had piled up 26 points for an eight-point edge over the Philadelphia Turners. Michigan's Wolverines were next with 14, Yale had 11, Michigan State 10, the New York A.C. eight, and France four.

But the Bucks, who copped the crown last year with 48 points in rounding out a sweep of the Big Nine and NCAA laurels, were expected to better that total today in mopping up the same three meets.

5 Back from 1946

Of the 14 teams which scored points in the AAU a year ago, only five are represented this time. The Philadelphians scored 16 points for third place behind Great Lakes last year, and already they have exceeded that total—with more certain in today's windup.

But with Ohio a mortal cinch to take at least three places in the three-meter diving, and two places in both the 100 and 440-yard free styles, it doesn't look like anyone else can amass a victory margin.

The Bucks wheeled out front last night by taking four of five places in the one-meter diving classic, with Miller Anderson winning his third straight AAU championship. Michigan's Gilbert Evans was second, but the 12 points out of a possible 16 pushed Ohio far ahead.

Double Winner

Joe Verdeur, defending champ in both the 220-yard breaststroke and 300-yard individual relay, was the only double winner as he repeated in both events and then helped the Philadelphia Turners to fifth place in the 400-yard sprint relay.

Bill Smith, Ohio's Hawaiian-born free style star who holds all the records from 220 to 880 yards, breezed through the 220 in 2:08 to win, although he was given a great chase by Alex Jany of France who was second by only a few inches.

The meet's only record went to a surprising Yale team which took the 440-yard free style relay in 3:27.8, erasing the 3:28.6 mark made by Yale in 1942.

Biggest upset of the opening day came in the 220-yard free style when Champion Wally Ris of Iowa City, Ia., failed to qualify. And Per Olaf-Olsson of Sweden was disqualified in the 300-yard individual medley qualifier when he failed to make a "touch" on the last turn while leading in his heat.

DRIVER FINED AFTER AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Two Injured in Accident South of City.

James A. Lykens, 25, of 188 Park boulevard whose car was involved in an accident about two and a half miles south of Marion on route 4 Friday night, was fined $25 and costs in municipal court today where he was found guilty of reckless driving. He had pleaded not guilty.

The accident resulted when a car driven by him left the road and hit telephone poles, the last one head on, on both sides of the old interurban tracks. He suffered cuts on the face and a passenger in the car, Miss Joan Myers of 879 Congress street, suffered bruises on the forehead.

He was charged with reckless driving by the state highway patrol.

REPORT SLOT MACHINES TAKEN FROM CLUB HERE

State Liquor Agents Make Seizure of Devices.

Chief of Police William E. Marks said today state liquor department inspectors had placed six slot machines in the police department basement and they informed him the machines had been taken from the Marion Eagles club last night about 9:30.

Damon A. Ledley, a member of the inspectors' party, said any statement concerning the incident would have to come from the head of the department in Columbus.

William Kelch, head of the enforcement division of the state liquor department, was not in Columbus today, according to employes in his office, and could not be reached for a statement.

Municipal court officials said no affidavit had been filed or warrant issued in connection with the seizure.

Move To Ban "National Paralysis" Walkouts

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 5—A proposal designed to block "national paralysis" strikes was offered to the senate labor committee today as part of the preliminary draft of a general labor bill.

Senators said this tentative version which the committee plans to discuss next week provides, among other things, for a ban on the closed shop and for the outlawing of jurisdictional strikers and secondary boycotts.

It would make it an unfair labor practice for a national union to dictate contract terms to its locals, but would impose no outright ban on industry-wide bargaining.

SAYS TRIBE HURLERS NOT "USING HEADS"

Coach Holds Post-Mortem on Cleveland Pitchers.

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 5—Deacon Bill McKechnie, Cleveland Indians coach and peerless professor of pitching, believes the Tribe's hurlers will achieve pennant - contending effectiveness when they start "using their heads."

"There's been nothing seriously wrong with most of the boys," McKechnie said yesterday after the Redskins' bat-battered mound corps fell apart again to give the New York Giants a 10-6 slugging victory in an exhibition tilt.

Excepting for Bob Feller and some of the other Tribe frontliners, McKechnie asserted certain Indian hurlers "have been experimenting openly and some of them haven't been using their heads.

"We've had too many fast ball exhibitions. The fellows must learn that a curve is a pretty good pitch to throw in a tough spot," the veteran coach added, before scheduling a "skull session" for the Tribe's mound staff.

Elmer Riddle Back On Cincinnati Red Payroll

By The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5—Elmer Riddle is going back on the Cincinnati Reds' payroll.

Warren Giles, club president, said he advised the stocky right-hander, forced into retirement two years ago by a sore arm, to apply to Commissioner A. B. Chandler for reinstatement as an active player.

Giles indicated he was ready to give Riddle a contract—at least a conditional agreement—on the basis of his performances in two exhibition games. Riddle won 21 and lost 11 games for the Reds in 1943—the last Redleg to turn in more than a score of victories in a season.

Hal Newhouser Twists Back in Exhibition Game

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, April 5 — The Detroit Tigers' much-lauded pitching staff suffered its first bad break of the year last night when southpaw Hal Newhouser twisted his back, but Manager Steve O'Neill is not greatly concerned about his ace.

Hal should be back in shape "in a few days," O'Neill said confidently when asked if the blond left-hander would be on the mound as scheduled when the Bengals open the 1947 American league season against the Browns in St. Louis April 15.

First Baseball Player Reports To Marion Cubs

First ball player to report for this year's diamond wars arrived in Marion yesterday. He is Johnny Tate, right-handed pitcher.

He arrived by bus from his home in Shelby, N. C., yesterday afternoon. Tate is 22 years old, stands six foot tall, weighs 160 pounds, and is a switch hitter. He is one of the first players whose contract was obtained by the Marion outfit from the Chicago Cubs.

He was in the Army part of last season but was discharged in time to play for the Statesville, N. C., Cubs winning 10 and losing four games.

He considers a game that he lost last season, despite allowing one hit, to be the best performance that he gave with Statesville. They were beaten 1 to 0.

Two of his victories were shutouts. His mound specialty is a fast ball.

Names of six other players on the Cub roster were recognized by Tate as being teammates of his last season.

They are William Bulduc, third baseman, Aaron Gray, all around infielder, Frank Smith, Bill Tomlinson, Edward Witowski, and Dick Pace, all twirlers who serve them up from the starboard side.

Statesville last year finished just one game out of a play-off in the North Carolina State league.

Three other boys from Tate's home town are active in organized baseball. They are Tom Wright, a centerfielder who batted .436 and hit 21 home runs for Durham, N. C., last season in class B ball and has been given a AA contract this year; Leonard Mason, who will play in A ball this season with Jacksonville, Fla., and Bud Hardin, a shortstop who will play in class B ball with Richmond, Va.

Tate worked out with these boys at Shelby this spring and also with the Shelby high school team. Shelby has a population of about 14,000 according to the 1940 census.

Three Women Burned In Capital Dormitory Fire

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 5—Three women were burned, at least one critically, in a fire which routed several hundred night-clad government girls from their dormitory in West Potomac park early today.

Emergency hospital listed the injured as Mrs. Clara Briggs, 38, Wellesley, Mass.; Sadie Gordon, 25, Vandergrift, Pa., and Cornelia Mayr, 57, Falls Church, Va.

All suffered second and third degree burns and hospital attaches said Miss Mayr's condition was critical.

Firemen said the fire apparently started from a cigaret in the "F" Wing of Alcott hall, normally occupied by 450 women.

CALEDONIA SET FOR TRACK AND BASEBALL

School Out To Make It Perfect Athletic Year.

Track and baseball are the sports planned for Caledonia High school this spring.

The school has been having one of its most successful years in athletics, having won the county six-man football championship and the county basketball crown.

The cagers who performed on this quintet, which turned in an overall record of 20 wins and two loses, were honored at a banquet at Hotel Harding March 28. S. A. Geesman, Ohio Wesleyan football line coach was the principal speaker. He showed movies of the Ohio Wesleyan-Case football game played last fall.

The track and baseball teams started working out about two weeks ago. The track team has been hardest hit by graduation but many performers from last year are back for both teams this season.

The schedule for track meets is as follows: April 10, quadrangular meet at Prospect with Prospect, Marseilles and Waldo; April 17, triangular meet at Prospect with Martel and Waldo; April 24, junior high meet at Prospect; April 26, Ohio Wesleyan relays, and May 1, quadrangular meet at Prospect with Prospect, Morral, and Kirkpatrick. A meet with Marion Harding is tentative.

Baseball games have been tentatively scheduled with Morral and Claridon. Harding will be played at Marion, April 22. The winner of the Caledonia-Claridon game will meet Pleasant for the right to represent Marion county in the district tournament.

Pleasant won a partial county crown in baseball last fall.

Retirement Plan for Ball Players Goes Into Effect

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 5—Baseball players, coaches and trainers can retire at 50 years of age and receive checks up to $100 a month the rest of their lives under the major leagues' new pension plan.

During their active careers, the clubs will give them group life insurance ranging from $5,300 to $10,600 per individual.

The American and National league clubs pay the entire cost of the insurance and "over three-fourths" the cost of the annuities under group contracts with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, the office of Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler disclosed.

Adopted April 1

Adoption of the program—effective last Tuesday, April 1—was announced by the commissioner, who created the players' pension committee, club representatives and their respective legal counsel "for producing this practical solution."

Features of the pension plan as outlined by the commissioner's office include:

Annuities ranging from $50 a month for a member (player, coach or trainer) with five years of service up to $100 per month for a player with 10 or more years of service will be payable for life.

If a retired member does not live long enough to receive payments for 10 years the annuity will continue to his beneficiary for the balance of the 10-year period.

Retirement at 50

The retirement date will be the member's fiftieth birthday, except for members over 40 years of age when joining the plan. In that case, the retirement date will be 10 years after joining.

Only five years of coverage will be required of coaches or trainers 60 years or older last April 1.

Member contribution will be based on active service during the regular season, graduated from $45.45 per full season for players with less than 87 days of service to $454.75 per season for players with more than 8½ years service.

Four Youths Held for Morrow County Theft That Hit Surprise Complications

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 5—Four Wyandot and Morrow county youths held in Mt. Gilead on charges of breaking and entering as the result of an alleged potato theft that went wrong.

They are Lester E. Staats, 18, Fred Staats Jr., 19, brothers, and Eugene C. Lumberson, 18, all of Little Sandusky, and John L. Seitz, 21, of Edison.

According to Morrow County Sheriff Tom England, a helpful motorist tossed a monkey wrench into a four-sack potato robbery being perpetrated by the boys Wednesday night at a storage building two miles east of Mt. Gilead.

Operations Interrupted

England said the youths had taken four sacks of potatoes from the sunken storage building and had set them by the side of the road, preparatory to loading them into their automobile. They were interrupted, however, when Melvin Roach of near Mt. Gilead drove by, saw the potatoes setting out, and loaded them into his car to take to authorities in Mt. Gilead.

Mr. Roach told the sheriff he did not suspect robbery at the time, but thought the potatoes had been left there by error and decided to bring them to Mt. Gilead for safekeeping. While he was loading them, he said, one of the boys came up and asked him what he was doing.

He took the license number of their car, which was standing nearby.

The potatoes belong to the Morrow County Farm Bureau and Thursday Harold Hartpence, manager, filed charges.

The youths were traced by their license number. When Sheriff England went to the Staats boys' home at Little Sandusky yesterday to take them into custody, he was told they had driven into Marion. He notified the state patrol, whose officers picked them up on the highway.

England said the boys told him one of them had been lowered by a rope into the underground storage bin. The potato sacks had then been hoisted out.

The youths will probably be arraigned in Mt. Gilead Monday.

STOCKS CRAWL AS MARKET STAGNATES

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 5—Leading stocks crawled over a slightly uneven terrain today in one of the slowest markets of the past two years or so.

From the start of the short session the ticker tape frequently halted. While modest plus signs persisted in most departments near the close, small declines were plentiful. Turnover for the two hours was in the neighborhood of 300,000 shares.

Occasional advances were shown for Bethlehem, Standard Oil (NJ), Southern Railway, Chesapeake and Ohio, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, International Nickel and American Can. Numerous pivotals were unchanged.

Intermittent losers included Youngstown Sheet, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Western Union "A," Great Northern Railway, Kennecott, Texas Co., Dow Chemical, Du Pont and U. S. Gypsum.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"WATCHED every waking minute!" Dicky repeated. "Good Heaven above! That must mean that you fear Mary may attempt to take her own life!"

"That is exactly what I mean," Dr. Twitchell said. "She is in a very dangerous condition mentally. She has acquired a phobia about something—what she told me about being worried about her slowness in remembering her lines, was plainly an excuse—but she has a secret gnawing fear. If we cannot find out what it is, and remove her terror, I will not guarantee her sanity."

Dicky had lifted his head alertly as Dr. Twitchell spoke about the excuse Mary had given him for her nervousness.

"What's that?" he asked quickly. "What exactly did she say?"

"That she always had been known as a very quick study, but that today she had found out that it took her almost three times as long to memorize her lines as it used to do. She said she got so angry she threw the manuscript across the room, told her aunt she wanted to die, and scared her out of her senses. But she added, 'I really don't, Dr. Twitchell. Honest, I don't!'

"She is a very clever actress," the elderly physician continued, "but I have seen so many of these borderline cases to be deceived. She really is desperate."

"You are right about that excuse," Dicky said, his brain patently clinging to that part of the physician's story. "Mary has too much sense to despair about a slowing-up in her memory. She would reason that her long illness, with no exercise of 'the little gray cells', naturally would result in a temporary deterioration of her mental processes. But she also would reason that convalescence and study would bring her back again. I agree with you that it must be something else."

"Whatever it is, we must find out its nature, and get it out of her system, if possible," Dr. Twitchell said. "But before we discuss the question of nurses—she will sleep all night—I will make my reputation on that, so we shall have plenty of time to arrange for them—I should like to hear from you, Mrs. Graham, just what Mrs. Veritzen said and did."

As briefly as possible, I told them of Mary's wish that I shut the door of the bathroom while she studied her lines; of her muttering, culminating in low wailing, her exclamation: "Oh, God, it's true! Oh, why can't I die? I will die rather than face this!" Her whisper later, "I want to die!" after I had succeeded in summoning Dr. Twitchell, only after my threat to leave her and call in trained nurses, and finally her sad hopeless voice just before she went to sleep: "If only this sleep could be the eternal one!"

Dr. Twitchell's eyes were alert.

"You have confirmed my opinion," he said. "She is desperate enough for anything. But I was wrong about her excise. Her phobia is some way connected with her role in your play."

"I agree with you," Dicky said, and as his eyes met mine, I knew that he shared the conjecture—not so fantastic in appearance now—which had come into my own mind. "But there is nothing we can do about that until she wakens in the morning, so we had better face the question of nurses. From what you said, Madge, I gather she's allergic to any kind of nurse except yourself."

"She certainly is," I said, "and if it were a case of ordinary illness, I could take over. But, of course, I could not watch her twenty-four hours of the day."

"It would not be twenty-four hours," Dr. Twitchell said. "I shall put her to sleep every night for a time. If it were not for your play you could manage until we could overcome her aversion to nurses. Is there not one somewhere whom she has had, and liked?"

"Yes, there is," I said. "She adores Mrs. Bickett."

"I can imagine she would," Dr. Twitchell said heartily, with palpable remembrance of the vigils he and Katharine had shared over the grievously wounded "Mr. X", FBI agent, the time "X's" work had helped trap the "bigwig" Nazi and sent the German submarine to the bottom of the ocean.

"Can you get hold of her?" he asked.
